

VOTERS WANT LOWER-COST E15

American voters — Republicans and Democrats alike — want permanent access to lower-cost, American-made E15. And they want it by a wide margin, according to March polling by Morning Consult. Voters support expanding the availability of lower-cost E15, and they specifically support legislation, like HR 1346, to make it permanently available year-round and nationwide.

71%

More than 7 in 10 respondents support the U.S. increasing availability of renewable E15 to help lower fuel prices and support energy independence. This includes 78% of Democrats and 67% of Republicans.

66%

or two-thirds of survey respondents support the Nationwide Consumer and Fuel Retailer Choice Act. This includes 72% of Democrats and 63% of Republicans.

70%

of respondents support the Renewable Fuel Standard — 66% of Republicans and 80% of Democrats.

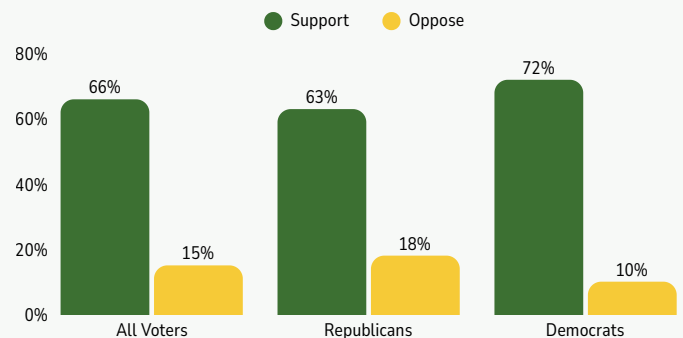

80%

of respondents believe renewable fuels like ethanol are important to energy independence.
